

Student Ethics Commitment

The Student Ethics agreement applies to all trainees registered in Rosen Institute–approved training centers or schools, with the aim of studying to become a certified Rosen Method Bodywork practitioner or Rosen Method Movement teacher. The student pledges to uphold the following standards and at internship also pledges to uphold the Rosen Institute Ethics, Scope of Practice, and Code of Conduct:

- Trainees are responsible for their own learning.
- Trainees aim to study with open minds, unhindered by past practice.
- Trainees thoughtfully consider feedback they are given.
- Trainees think and act ethically and lawfully.
- Trainees ask for help when needed.
- Trainees act in the best interests of their clients.
- Trainees respect a person’s right to work with a professional rather than a student or intern.
- Trainees maintain high standards of personal conduct.
- Trainees commit to look after their own health and well-being.
- Trainees have a vested interest in the future of the profession and take the opportunity to participate in shaping the future of the profession.
